The Daylight Store

IT'S OUR BUSINESS

To keep our trade posted on the new things as well as the better prices on staple things. Here are both.

FIRST

We want to ask you to see the latest in a Lady's Waist called the Peter Pan. It's after the style shown in patterns by the New Idea Pattern people in our Monday's advertisement and sells for $1.19.

New lot of very pretty Dress Muslins in sweet peas and rose patterns over satin stripes. A good 25c Muslin. Now for 18c per yard.

By express today, more of that 50-inch French Muslin, used so much for graduation dresses. (Sorry to keep you waiting.)

SECOND

Is 37 colors in Brainerd & Armstrong's 27-inch Silks, all the colors that they make this popular width in. We have them all. If there is a better Silk for wear we have not heard of it and the price is but $1.00 per yard.

We are selling as strong Silk advertising, a 36-inch Black Chiffon Taffeta for waists or whole costumes, for only $1.25 per yard. (Will stand up to any $1.50 Silk on the market.)

White Wash Silks for commencement dresses at 50c and 75c are special values. (They pay a small profit and please the trade.)

THIRD

Are a few special values in staple everyday sellers.

One lot of Fancy and Checked Ginghams at 7c per yard.

One lot of odd values in new Muslins that were 15c and 18c, all in one lot at 12 1/2c per yard.

Black and White and Navy and White Macerized Shepherd Plaids, 25c values bought for a sale and now marked 19c.

Black and White and Navy and White 43-inch Wool Shepherd Plaids for 65c. (Selling in other cities for 75c.)

If you have a young lady in a graduation class you can please her by purchasing one of our new White Parasols.

The Nevada Porter.

"They have an ingenious colored porter traveling on the Tonopah railroad," remarked Chauncey L. Canfield, who is just back from a trip to the Nevada mining camps. "There's a train over there that gets to Goldfield at 5 o'clock in the morning, and if you own several million shares of mining stock and are known in the camp as a multi-millionaire mining operator and tip this colored porter with reckless abandon he will allow you to sleep until 8 o'clock. Otherwise he is liable to rouse you out of your berth at 5 o'clock."

"There was a passenger on the train the other morning who had crossed the porter's path with a patry silver dollar, and at 5 o'clock in the morning this porter was pulling the curtains off that passenger's berth and notifying him that it was time to arise."

"It's one of the rules of the company," said the porter, "that passengers must get up when the train arrives, and go up town."

"The passenger calmly reached under his pillow and drew forth a revolver that looked as big as a thirteen-inch gun on a battleship."

"Now you get out of here quick," he said to the porter, "poking the weapon in the face of the colored attendant."

"I beg your pardon," said the colored porter, "but there is occasions when this rule can be broken, and I think this is one of them."—San Francisco Chronicle.
